

5-15-1792

Letter from John Newton to John Campbell, May 15, 1792

John Newton

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.spu.edu/newton\_campbell

---

Recommended Citation

Newton, John, "Letter from John Newton to John Campbell, May 15, 1792" (1792). Newton/Campbell Letters. 16.
http://digitalcommons.spu.edu/newton\_campbell/16

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Special Collections at Digital Commons @ SPU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Newton/Campbell Letters by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ SPU.

London

London fifteenth May 92

Mr Campbell

Great Market

Dublin

Prof Mortimer

Dear Sir, Unless I had a copy of the letter you refer to, I cannot at this distance of time judge, whether I should be willing, that what I wrote freely & without reserve to a friend, should appear before the Public. I rejoice that there is a good work begun & increasing in Wales (The Lord grant it may reach even to us) But as it is not in the line of my connection, nor within my personal knowledge; & as I have had no direct information from Mr. Charles, & all that I know is from what I have seen (in common with others) in print. I do not think I am properly call'd at present to interpose; & rather wish, ~~at present~~, to be excus'd from having my little name, at present, appear upon the occasion.

When you see Mr. Borer, I beg you to mention my respects to him. The paper Mr. Black mention'd to him, I enclose. you will see, that it is so entirely a profane, that it cannot with any propriety be printed, unless prefixed to the book for which it was written. And I believe it will be found there, in the subsequent Editions. No particular account <sup>of Mr. Cooper</sup> can be permitted to appear in Public, during his life.

If Mr. Lawson comes in your way, I beg you to tell him that I am both sorry & ashamed, that I have not written to him. But for some time past I have been taken up, with Unavoidable, more than usual. Every day brings a something which must be attended to. And I am forc'd to defer what may be delay'd without detriment, to a season of more leisure.

With my prayers & best wishes, that the Lord may bless & guide you in all your concerns, I remain Your affectionate friend & servant

John Newton

N<sup>o</sup> 6

15 May 92