He Is Risen

Buried? Ah yes, but not to stay
Forever 'neath the crusted clay;
    He died to live again,
    Fell to rise and reign,
    Slept to wake and live on high as King.
Could seal'd stone Him to His vault confine,
Or chosen watch revoke His stated time?
Ah, no! He bursted wide the chains of death
    And rose to live again.

Risen! All hail the Christ, the King!
Thruout the heavens let the welcome ring!
    Behold He lives again,
    And sits on high to reign,
As Priest of earth below, of heav'n as King.
    He, captive led captivity,
    Robbed the grave of victory,
    And took the sting from death.

Declaration of Prohibition

Tressa Marsh

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their character with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness." That whenever any vice in a government becomes destructive of these ends it is the Right of the People to alter or abolish it. Prudence indeed will dictate that certain conditions long established should not be changed for light and transient causes, and therefore all experience hath shown, that mankind is more disposed to suffer while evils are sufferable than to right them by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed.

The American saloon is a menace to the life, the liberty and the happiness of every child born under the stars and stripes. No one can tell whose boy or girl will be taken next. "Rum, the brutish son of darkness, who has drenched the earth with blood, gropes in yet unblasted regions for his helpless prey. Shall we guide his gory fingers where our innocent children play?" The calaity which overtakes them is worse than death. How much will a man give in exchange for his life? All that he hath. Life, the soul has no units of value, it cannot possibly be exchanged. Only in terms of another soul can its value be estimated. Indeed so sacred it life that even the right of the state to cut off the wretched existence of a murderer is more and more questioned as civilization advances. But there are yet higher values than life: Virtue, honor, love. To die rather than sacrifice virtue and honor; to perish in a labor of love; to such deeds all mankind pays tribute. If murder then is so grave a crime, when death is confessedly not the worst of evils, what shall we say of a practice whereby reason ends in insanity, virtue in shame?

This is the land of the free and the brave. Our forefathers fought, bled and died for liberty. But do we have it today? Are not the American people in bondage to political parties? Are they not enslaved to the Almighty Dollar? For a handful of gold the brewers are allowed to sell not "liquid bread" but liquid poison to men. A license means not restriction or regulation but permission for money! A Bribe! Clink, clink, clink go the thirty pieces of silver into the coffers of the United States, and for this the noblest manhood, the finest blood of the land is betrayed into the hands of the enemy.

Is it possible for a poor man to pursue happiness in peace while he is stooping under a load of taxes? In foreign countries it is true that because of the large standing armies maintained, every workman is said to carry a soldier on his back. But every honest toiling citizen of America carries upon his back a brewer, a policeman, a criminal lawyer, an idiot, a pauper or a murderer. Is it possible for a man to dwell in tranquility while all manner of crimes are being committed daily?

Where do the anarchist, the thief, the murderer scheme their deadly work? In the back room of a saloon. "For the dark places of the earth are the habitation of cruelty."

Mankind has suffered long and unceasingly from drunkenness. The habit of wine old. It was old when America. It was old It is older than the back to the time of untorious warriors made the skulls of the vanlets. Mankind has sufferable. If condmain as they are, what Nation? To begin to deteriorate, to that extent will they lose their capability and power for action. In sacred history a curse was pronounced on certain tribes because of their love of wine. It is said of them, "Therefore my people have gone into captivity. Their glory and their pomp hath departed. Their multitude is dried up with thirst." Shall we Americans stand idly by while this viper alcohol saps the strength and the glory of our manhood? Shall we stand idly by and watch the light of our nation go out in bacchanalian revelries?

The record of the past two years is decidedly in favor of the aggressive liquor trust. Alabama has repealed her prohibitory law. State wide prohibition movements have been defeated in Oregon, Texas and Florida. In Maine the majority for prohibition was so small as to require an official recount. The brewers recently announced that they could kill prohibition in Oklahoma. Last October the United States by sending as honorary president Mr. Wilson, secretary of agriculture, officially recognized the international Brewers congress.

This is a critical period in the struggle for right. The foe is a mighty one. On the side of evil are great numbers. They are wielded together by strong organizations and backed with millions of dollars. But in the past the American people have always faced their difficulties squarely and settled them promptly. We are not traitors to our sires. The blood of the Pilgrim Fathers still flows in the veins of their descendents.

"New occasions teach new duties;
Time makes ancient right uncouth.
They must upward still and onward,
Who would keep abreast of Truth;
So before us gleam her campfires!
We ourselves must pilgrims be;
Launch our Mayflower, and steer boldly
Through the desperate winter sea."

A saloonless nation can only be realized through an amendment to the constitution of the United States prohibiting the sale and manufacture for sale of all beverages containing alcohol.

It is argued that prohibition will not prohibit. But when the necessary amendment prohibiting the sale and manufacture of alcoholic liquors is recorded in the constitution, then national prohibition must follow. Do we ever question article 3 in the amendments to the constitution which reads, "No soldier shall in time of peace be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner; nor in time of war but in a manner to be prescribed by law." We do not question that article or any other article in the constitution. When a man violates one of these laws he must pay the penalty. If election will elect, or if a recall will recall then prohibition will prohibit. Therefore if such an amendment were made, national prohibition must necessarily follow.

The situation is not discouraging but it calls for speedy united action. Count o'er the great struggles of history; they were not won in a single day. The crisis of the battle is at hand. College men are being aroused. The Temperance forces are gathering themselves for a mighty effort. The liquor traffic is doomed and must surely die! To this end with a firm reliance in Divine Providence we mutually pledge our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor.

It is written of Christopher Columbus, when he was afloat on the unknown seas with his crew in mutiny:

"What did he do when hope was gone?
Then pale and worn he kept his deck,
And peered through darkness, ah that night
Of all dark nights! And then appeared a speck, a light.
It grew a starlight flag unfurled.
It grew to be times burst of dawn.

He gained a world, he gave that world
Its greatest watchword, Sail on, and on!"

What did George Washington do at Valley Forge when hope was gone, when the snow was stained with the life blood of his brave soldiers? He went on and on and became the Father of a mighty nation. What did Abraham Lincoln do in the darkest hours of the Civil War? Trusting in an Almighty God he went straight on and signed the Emancipation Proclamation that set thousands of slaves at liberty. What shall we do in the face of bitter opposition, when great mountains of difficulties are piled high before us? We will go on and on! The Prince of Peace is leading us. The Hosts of the Lord are on our side and "if God be for us, who can be against us?"

Coming of Spring

Now Winter doth outpour
His wrath upon the Earth,
And storms with mighty roar
Do scatter naught but dearth;
But when fair-haired Adonis comes
From darkness, long enthralled;
He brings in Spring,
All nature blossoms out,
And birds begin to sing.
'Tis then that lovely Venus
Her waiting arms extend,
And reaching forth
Throughout the earth,
Brings Winter to an end.

—Weary Willie.

EDITORIAL

Since this is the Easter issue of the Cascade we wish to pay due respect to the great event, the resurrection of Christ, for which Easter was instituted. This day ought to command the respect of every man, woman and child.

By many people however Easter is regarded as a day of festivity. They look forward to this day when they shall have their egg appetite satisfied. In some oriental countries Easter sports are carried out quite enthusiastically by the young people. Boys for weeks preceeding this day save their money so that they might buy eggs and match them with other boys. The trick is this, one boy holds an egg with point up; another boy takes the similar end and tries to break the former's egg. The person holding the stronger egg receives every egg he breaks. It is also considered as a day for new things such as spring flowers, Easter hats, new clothes and the reproduction of eggs, chickens and rabbits.

We believe that Easter should have a deeper meaning than mere personal gratifications. This day is set apart by the Christian world as a day in which to commemorate the resurrection of the world's Savior, who is the Christian's passover. Christ said of himself that if he had not come the world would have been lost. It is through Him that the entrance to heaven has been opened to every willing believer. Furthermore, if Christ had not arisen from the dead the redemption of man would not have been accomplished in that it was necessary that he should first taste of death.

Since the success of Christianity is based on this event we ought to keep this day with sincerest appreciation to the risen Christ.

At one of the late meetings of the Executive Committee of the Associated Students, it was decided that three prizes for stories for the Commencement number of the Cascade should be awarded. Consequently the committee set aside $2.50 for the first cash prize, and recommended the Phils and the Alethesians to provide for the second and third prizes. These societies took up the recommendation of the Executive Committee and voted to provide the prizes.

Any student that is a subscriber to the paper, or that buys a copy of the Commencement number is entitled to enter the contest. The conditions to be met are as follows:

Each story must be not more than 1200 or less than 800 words, must be legibly written in ink or typewritten on one side only of the paper, must be signed with a fictitious name—such name to be also written on the outside of a sealed envelope in which is the writer's own name on a slip of paper, must be handed in by May 10, 1912; and there must be at least seven stories handed in.

Now, students, take hold of this matter. We wish to put out a fine Commencement number, and the literary department should be one of its strongest features. Begin at once so that you will have plenty of time.

In view of the fact that we should like to have some good poetry for the Commencement number, the Cascade will give a $3.00 Seattle Seminary pillow cover as a prize for the best poem of from 30 to 36 lines in length handed in. These poems must be handed in by May 10, 1912, and no prize will be awarded unless at least three poems are handed in. They should be signed with a fictitious name and handed in according to the specifications for the story contest.

The stories are to be handed to the Editor, S. E. Wyler, and the poems are to be handed to E. A. Haslam.

ALETHEPIANS

“While there's life, there's hope,” has been abundantly proved in our club. Not so very many weeks ago we felt as if we were sinking into a hopeless lethargy as a society, but since we have doctored and reinforced our constitution, amputated ancient members and started a good circulation of interest by vigorously exercising the talents of our members, we feel like a different organization. Four new offices have been created and our membership is soaring among the fifties.

At the last regular meeting we had a large attendance and an excellent “Longfellow” program was rendered.

I. P. L.

On Friday evening, February 23rd, the Intercollegiate Prohibition League held its annual local contest in the Assembly Hall. Three contestants entered, namely, Miss Tressa Marsh, Mr. Frank Watkins and Mr. Oliver Haslam. After the decision of the judges a prize of ten dollars was awarded to Miss Tressa Marsh.

Owing to some vacancies occurring in the local staff the following officers were elected at one of the meetings. Mr. Highbee, treasurer, and Miss Myra Burns, league editor for the Cascade. Mr. E. A. Haslam, Mr. G. F. Watkins and Miss M. Burns were chosen as delegates to the state convention.

Friday evening, March 22nd, the state contest was held in the Assembly Hall. Only two schools were represented, University of Puget Sound by Mr. Smith, and the Seattle Seminary by Miss Tressa Marsh. Besides the two excellent orations an interesting address was delivered by Mr. H. S. Warner, General Secretary of the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association. Mr. Smith of the University of Puget Sound received first place and was awarded a thirty dollar prize.

Alexandrian

The first program since the election of the new officers was rendered on the afternoon of March 8th. There were no visitors present but the program was greatly enjoyed by all the students. The new president gave a very interesting inaugural address. The most entertaining features of the program were the two dialogues. The first, a misunderstanding between a woman and a tramp, was very original and was well rendered. The second, a French dialogue, was also well rendered. The music was a very enjoyable feature and at the close of the program Prof. Stillwell gave a short talk on music. I am sure we all agree with him in the statement that nothing is more inspiring than beautiful music.

SCHOOL NEWS

Several of the young married couples in the neighborhood were invited over to the Seminary one evening not very long ago. All the students were enabled in this manner to get acquainted with them.

Every one was indeed glad to see Miss Bessie Ratcliff again, when she paid us a recent visit. We are hoping that this will not be her last one.

St. Patrick was not forgotten this year by the students. On the evening of March 15th there was an informal gathering in the dining room. Most of the girls wore green in some form or another. Even shamrocks from old Erin were in evidence. Irish songs were sung, and Miss Lee Sherwood recited a poem about St. Patrick's birthday. Mike and Pat received their full share of attention in the form of jokes. Guessing contests were held and oh, yes, don't forget there was a delightful taffy pull.

Prof. Stillwell's interesting five minute readings on the discovery of the South Pole have come to an end.

We were again favored by having Mr. Pease with us and listening to one of his instructive talks on the subject of health.

Mr. and Mrs. Beers have returned from an extended visit in California. A very pleasant trip is reported by them.

Tennis is being taken up with all the old interest once more in evidence and when the two new courts now under construction are ready, there is no doubt that it will be still more popular. The game that seems the most suitable for these long evenings we are now enjoying is "Two deep."

The members of the Junior Missionary Society certainly outdid themselves in their program the evening of the twenty-seventh. It was greatly enjoyed by the audience and the recitations by the younger members were certainly fine. The dialogue given by the older members was very unique as well as instructive. We congratulate the President on having such a fine society.

CLASS NEWS

These delightful spring days! How well they coincide with Senior privileges.

SENIORS We held a meeting the first part of the month and choose our speakers for commencement. Miss Stillwell and Mr. Watkins were the two upon whom the honor was conferred. Miss Poole has been decided upon as valedictorian by the members of the faculty. There are two more speakers to be chosen by the faculty and we are anxiously awaiting their decision, not, however, because we desire the distinction of being chosen for in this instance each of us is quite willing that another receive the honor.

Prof. Burns has recently been holding private interviews with different members of the class. The subject of conversation has been credits. Fortunately, we are all able to produce the required number.

We are glad to receive Miss Olive Woodecock into our class as an honorary member.

JUNIORS Prof. B. to Chu.—"Fred, have you been writing notes to the girls?"

Fred.—"No, just poetry."

Prof.—"Worse still. Oh well, this is spring."

Saturday, the 23rd, was the day of the Junior picnic. The morning dawned dark and cloudy but we were undaunted and twenty-one of us started at 9:45 a. m., reaching Hillman City about 10:30. From there we walked over the hill to Bailey's Peninsula and then the fun began.

Baseball was the first thing that claimed the attention of the girls while most of the boys went exploring in the neighboring woods. Soon everybody began to feel a sensation of hunger, and preparation for dinner went on apace. A large bonfire was built on which we made coffee and toasted weenies. By the persevering effort of Mr. Logan the eggs were made to boil. When dinner time arrived everyone was starving and readily pitched into the good things. But where were Mr. Aldridge and Mr. Lawrence all this time? Just as we were beginning our repast, they leaped out of a boat onto the shore. Eating was the principal occupation of some of the boys while to others flower-picking, baseball and boating were the main attractions of the afternoon.

Before leaving the peninsula a class meeting was held, in which Miss Marston expressed her appreciation of being elected as our honorary faculty member. This speech was followed by one from the president. We returned to the Seminary about 7:15 p. m. and made the campus resound with:

"We're not rough,
We're not tough,
We're the Juniors,
That's enough!"

The Sophomores are nearing the close of school with an excellent record and high ambitions.

SOPHOMORES

We have decided to prepare a class paper so be ready for an Sophomores outburst of eloquence and genius.

Althea Marston and Ester Solburg have hit upon a very unique way of skipping English. The other day they fled into the chapel, a while before class. Along came Chester Hampson—a party in the conspiracy—who kindly locked them in. After class they were released. Isn't that clever?

The Modern History class is greatly indebted to Nora Johnson for refreshments. We recommend her as a pitcher—of chocolates.

James Hamilton seems to be quite devoted to the Faculty. At present he is separated from them by only a seat or two.

Walter Scott enjoys these April days but prefers his May nights. If you want to see a wide awake, enthusiastic bunch, keep your eye on the Sophomores.

Everything is going nicely and we are inspired with the thought that spring in all her beauty is again here.

FRESHMEN

We greatly regret the loss of one of our members, Miss Nora Muman, of Colville, Wn., who was called home on account of sickness in the family. We are in hopes that she will again be able to join us.

When young folks enter High School
With faces all aglow,
They never stop a minute
Nor are they very slow;
You have to go to catch them,
And seldom are they seen,
But you can always reach them,
By calling, Eight—one—two—Green.

EXCHANGES

The Echo, Santa Rosa, Cal.—You are a clever paper and we find little to criticize. A brief solid essay would give more literary weight. We congratulate you on the prospective enlargement of your school accommodations. It ought to give new inspiration to your school work.

The Tolo, Seattle, Wash.—You have plenty of good cuts. "Lizzie-Beth" is a good story but the action should be a little more rapid for a short story.

The Pacific Star, Mt. Angel, Ore.—Your March paper is a very interesting number; nor is that all by any means, for its pages are well-filled with instructive reading. "As Others See Us" and "The Chinese People" are well worth reading. "The Indian Tomahawk" is very well worked out. "Erin" is a pretty poem. Encourage your literary contributors. They have talent.

The Cardinal, Portland, Ore.—The stories in your March number show good work and originality. An instructive up-to-date essay is what you need and an exchange column or something else in the place of a page or two of your jokes. Otherwise your paper is to be complimented upon its good material.

The Sotoyoman, Healdsburg, Cal.—You have some very taking poems and your literary material is well chosen, but that red cover is becoming too familiar.

The Clarion, Salem, Ore.—Excellent literary material and plenty of it.

The Kodak, Everett, Wash.—Splendid stories. Like your cover and especially the department of "Book Reviews."

The News, Eugene Ore.—Artistic cover and a fine paper. Evidently the Juniors are O. K.

Other papers received are:

The Hemnica, Red Wing, Minn.—February.

Bulletin, Spring Arbor, Mich.—February.

The Clarion, Rochester, N. Y.—March.

The Antelope, Klearney, Nebr.—March.

The University Echo, Chatanooga, Tenn.

The Guard and Tackle, Stockton, Cal.—February.

The Houghton Star, Houghton, N. Y.—March.

The Polygraph, Riverside, Cal.—February.
